

EASY WAY TO GET MEDICAL MARIJUANA CARD

Medical marijuana can be consumed in many different ways. Newbie's may think they have to smoke the cannabis, but there are several other ways to use medical marijuana. Experiment with these methods and find the one that works best for you.

SMOKING:

Smoking is the most common way to use marijuana. The effects of smoking weed are felt immediately, but they don't get stronger if you hold in the smoke. Start with a small amount and wait a few minutes between puffs. Smoking medical marijuana can offer instant relief, but smoke can be harmful to the lungs and isn't a good option if you have asthma or lung problems.

VAPING:

Vaping is yet another popular method for consuming medical marijuana. Vaporizing is done by preheating the vaporizer, adding dried weed flower or extract, pressing the button and inhaling. Vaping provides instant relief and also has less harsh effects on your lungs than smoking does.

EDIBLES:

Edibles are another popular way of consuming cannabis. They're made by infusing cannabis into other foods like butter or oil which then allows you to bake them into cookies or brownies. These edibles are great because they're easier on your lungs than smoking but still provide the same effects as smoking marijuana would give you (minus the smoke!).

TINCTURES:

Tinctures are liquid extracts made from alcohol and vegetable glycerin that dissolve cannabinoids from your weed into liquid form. They come in dropper bottles so you can easily get them under your tongue for quick absorption into your bloodstream.

TOPICALS:

Topicals are products designed for topical application (i.e., on your skin) that deliver the healing effects of cannabis without any psychoactive effects. They come in lotions, balms and salves, oils and sprays.

DABBING:

A newer form of medical marijuana consumption is called "dabbing." This method involves heating a cannabis concentrate to a high temperature and then inhaling. Dabbing provides instant relief, but it also causes extreme psychoactive effects.
